

Craigslist 944 Race car in NorCal - $5500

Posted by 944Racer72 - 24 Apr 2011 11:52

Saw this on Craigslist, no affiliation:

sfbay.craigslist.org/sby/cto/2343016963.html

1983 Porsche Spec 944 Race Car - $5500 (mountain view)

1988 engine,

Transmission is a 1988 gearbox with LSD,

Headers,

Light-weight flywheel and clutch,

New rod bearings,

ARP rod bolts,

Roger Kraus suspensions,

KONI shocks,

Steel gas tank replaced with 1988 plastic tank,

Set of RA1's, 888's, and Goodyear GSCS', and two sets of cookie-cutter wheels,

Some spare parts,

Racing log books and some racing history

Re: Craigslist 944 Race car in NorCal - $5500

Posted by rlofgren - 28 Apr 2011 09:04

that car also has an in-cockpit brake bias adjuster. maybe an endurance racer?

Re: Craigslist 944 Race car in NorCal - $5500

Posted by UFfitz56 - 08 Jun 2011 18:05

Do you guys think this would be a good option? Seems like it might need a little work but otherwise would still be cheaper than building from scratch. Can anyone vouch for the car? I noticed it is actually the second car in the picture on the "technical articles" front page. Kinda crazy! Btw here is the updated listing.

Craigslist

Re: Craigslist 944 Race car in NorCal - $5500

Posted by Salanis42 - 25 Jun 2011 15:14

Aaron,

If you're looking to get into 944 Spec in NorCal, I need to get rid of my car by December. It's an already prepped 924s. The rest of the guys around here can vouch for it's competitiveness.

I'm asking more than what this one is going for, but could work out a mutually agreeable price for a car that's ready to go with current logbook. E-mail me at: "Salanis42 (at) yahoo dot the-usual"; if you're maybe interested.
